ADOLFO REY AND HIS BRIDE

Ponniless in a Strange Land --- He Braved His Father's Anger--They Ran Away from Buenos Ayres and Have Had a Sad Experience in New York---A Friend in Need.

New York, Oct. 29 .- Young people without finaficial prospects who contemplate eloping should read this story and ponder before they take the step.

Adolfo Rey, a young Spaniard, of Beunos Ayres, fell in love with Anatildo Ade, a pretty Spanish miss, and announced that he would marry her. His father, Leopold Rey, a rich wholesale grocer, would not hear of the match, for Anatilde's parents were poor people.

But Adolfo would not heed his father, and as his sweetheart and himself were too young to wed in the Argentine Republic, he being only nineteen years old, they dared Adolfo's wrath and fled to the City of Mexico, where they were married.

the City of Mexico, where they were married.

Friends there told the young husband that money was easy to get in New York, and the bridal pair came here to seek their fortune. They arrived a little more than a year ago, and went to a Spanish boarding house at No. 133 East Fitteenth street. Neither spoke English, and Adolfo looked in vain for employment. What little money they had soon ran out, and they began to experience the pangs of poverty.

The fact that they were foreigners in a strange land guined sympathy for Adolfo and his bride, and they were permitted to remain at the boarding house long after they were without means of paying the landlady.

Charity does not last forever, and after six months the Reys were turned into the street, more helpless than when they came to New York. They fought misery after misery for many weeks. Nobody would give Adolfo work, and finally Anatilde determined to go on the stage as a dancer. The young wife had had no experience of the sort, but she had seen her country women dance and had seen her countrywomen dance and believed that she could please. The effort caused her tears, but she pluckily stuck to her task, and finally appeared in costume as a Spanish

The effort caused her tears, but she pluckily stuck to her task, and finally appeared in costume as a Spanish dancer at Bennett's Casino in East New York. She acquitted herself creditably, but the engagement was only for a week and the pay was small. It led, however, to her joining a little band of Spanish troubadours, and with them she went last week to Washington, but the troupe disbanded there for lack of patronage, and all that Anatilde received for her week's work was $12.

With this small sum of money the unfortunate lovers again took up the struggle for existence in this city. They hired a small room at No. 418 West Nineteenth street. Work did not coine to the husband, and soon the money was spent. For thirteen days they nearly starved.

Vila Nadal, a young Spanish clerk, who had met the Reys in the Fifteenth street boarding house, came to their rescue. With his slender purse he took them to a restaurant. The poor wife had not tasted warm food for so long a time that she fainted in the eating house.

Clerk Nadal, although he could ill afford it, took a flat of three rooms at No. 765 Ninth avenue that Adolfo and Anatilda might have a home. He even pawned his winter overceat to buy cooking utensils for them.

A reporter found the forlorn married pair in Nadal's little flat yesterday afternoon. Two beds, a table and a few chairs were the extent of the furniture. Adolfo said in Spanish he had tried every possible means of finding work, but had failed. He had one letter, he said, from his mother, who wrote him said, from his mother, who wrote him to come home. She would send him money, she said in her letter, but his father had devined her purpose and would give her none.

Mrs. Roy, the young wife, was sick in bed. Her dancing costume, covered with spangles, lay across the footboard, and was the only bright object in the dreary room.

TWO INTERESTING RACES.

ome Fine Amateur Sport on the Fair Grounds Course Yesterday.

There was some interesting amateur racing on the State Fair Grounds course yesterday afternoon. It has been announced that some of the local fast flyers would go against each other for prizes, and a crowd of two hundred and prizes, and a crowd of two hundred and fifty or so gathered there to see the fun. Coi. William Exley acted as starter and Messrs. Frank Stamm and L. V. Blond were the other judges. Mr. Call, a jewelry drummer of New York City, kept time for the boys.

The first event on the programme was a trot, for which Captain Thomas Heskett's, Mr. D. L. Heiskell's, Mr. C. N. Hancher's and Mr. Al Rheinstrom's hotses were entered. Each man drove his own horse, and the result was a very even and interesting race, two of the heats being more hetly contested than may race seen at the late State Fair. Mr. Rheinstrom took the race in three straight heats. Mr. Hancher took second money and Mr. Heiskell came in third. The best heat was made in 2:55. A novelly followed in the shape of a combined pace and trot, for which there were three starters, belonging to Messrs.

combined pace and trot, for which there were three starters, belonging to Messrs. Andrew Sweeney, Arch Woods and William Ellingham. Mr. Sweeney took the race in two straight heats, Mr. Ellingham being second. This race, like the other, was a very even and exciting one, but no money to speak of changed hands. The best time made was 2:401. These races have proved so interesting that it is probable that others will be given if there is good enough weather for the purpose.

BROUGHT TO TIME.

The Contractor of the Government Building Hanted Over the Coals.

Cmcago, Oct. 29.-Architect W. J. Edbrooke, of the treasury department, who arrived in the city yesterday to look after the construction of the government building, accompanied by Superintendent of Construction M. E. Bell. visited the grounds and found fault with what has thus far been accomplished on the government building. Twentyone piles for the foundation of the dome have been daiven. They were, according to Mr. Edbrooke, neither large enough nor driven properly, and he ordered all of them pulled out. The contractor was, at the same time, shown the necessity for complying absolutely with the specification. Mr. Edbrooke found twenty men at work driving piles and laying foundations. He at once intormed the contractor that his force was not half large enough, and that he would have to increase it. This the contractor agreed to do, and he was reminded at the same time that his work must be completed by the middle of July next. visited the grounds and found fault with

The Alliance is as full of politics as an egg is full of meat. Yes, sir, we are into politics and in there to stay. They talk about party; what is party? It is a nice little collar with a chain. I don't, care who is nominated. I will vote as I please."

Polk then spoke of the sub-treasury bill, and said that there were eighteen states pleased to stand by this scheme.
